Project context

Education and training providers have a crucial role in combating inequalities and promoting shared prosperity but face a lot of pressure in keeping pace with the constant social changes.

→ There is a need for NGOs and CSOs to receive support to adapt and improve their capacities.

What aims the iBOX project?

To build and improve the capacities of NGO's and CSO's staff so that they:

- Are better equipped to meet the new and continuing challenges.
- Remain and become more inclusive and diverse.
- While embracing digital and environmentally sustainable work methods.

Who is it directed to?

The primary target group is:

- Adult Educators and Staff working in the Education and Training Sector.

This group includes different profiles: managers, officers, volunteers, educators and trainers

Main areas of capacity building

Enhance the capacities of learning providers in 3 crucial areas:

- Digital Divide Gap
- Access and Participation Gap
- Inclusion and Diversity Gap

Digital Divide Gap

- Assist learning providers in adapting to the digital transition
- Equip them with the necessary skills to employ blended working methods and pedagogies effectively
- Ensure that they keep up to date and maximise the potential of available resources

While recognising and addressing the specific needs and barriers that some learners face in the digital world

Access and Participation Gap

- Improve the capacity of learning providers to promote active participation and civic engagement through learning
- Guide NGOs and CSOs in incorporating participatory approaches into their activities
- Ensure accessibility for all in their activities

Inclusion and Diversity Gap

- Support learning providers to address diversity within their activities
- Fostering diversity within their organizations
- Create a more inclusive and diverse learning environment, externally and internally
